The Algarve Tourism Board would like to thank Hermínio Rebelo, the Algarve Wine-growing Commission and all the wine producers for their excellent collaboration.
It has been five years since the first edition of the "Algarve Wine Guide" was published and even then it revealed the huge range of styles, grape varieties and profiles of the nectars produced in the Algarve. Back then, there were around 16 producers; today, that number has grown to at least 24, to the satisfaction of wine-lovers who are now able to put their tasting skills to good use, savouring other wines of equal purity and uncontested quality.

Then, as now, the Algarve terroir gave rise to red, white, rosé and liqueur wines which would easily vindicate the position taken by those who consider wine to be a "sinful" subject: for indeed, the infinite pleasure taken in their consumption is somehow reminiscent of moral transgression. The subtleness of the aroma, flavour and texture in every drop of Algarve wine would lead Bacchus (or Dionysus as he is also known) to perdition (and if this is the effect on the gods, how could mere mortals resist?).

We now have a number of extraordinary, prize-winning labels, even if they are still not very widely known. And this is precisely why we have decided to publish a new, updated edition of this guide, in order to record the huge leap forward that has been taken by wine-growing in Algarve and to make everyone aware of the wines we produce. We hope that our initiative will impact tourism by encouraging even more visitors to come to our region, attracted too by our history, culture and gastronomy. We look forward to your visit.

Open this guide and find out more about each wine so that you can choose the right one whatever the occasion. When the weather cools down, a full-bodied red to warm the soul, enjoyed with friends and family in the Algarve, will taste simply wonderful. And with the summer sun at its height, what could be better than a nicely chilled white or rosé to accompany a fish dish? But don’t forget our liqueur wines, full of traditional flavour and perfect before or after a meal.

You will soon realise that there is a perfect nectar for every occasion and that your resolution for the future as an aficionado must be to include other designations of origin in your wine-drinking habits. After all, wine-growing in Portugal also means the Algarve. So pay us a visit, take pleasure in our wines and then tell us if we were right or not...

Desidério Silva
President of the Algarve Tourism Board
The Algarve Wine-growing Region

“The nominations and awards won by Algarve wines clearly show the recognition of the work done by the wine-growers and producers.”

The Demarcated Region of the Algarve was created in 1980 and is located in the southernmost part of Portugal, coinciding geographically with the district of Faro. This entire region corresponds to the wine-growing area where “Algarve Regional Wine” and Liqueur Wine with the “Algarve” Geographical Indication are produced. Along the Atlantic coastline, we find the four regions which produce wines classified as “Protected Designation of Origin”, or “DOP” in Portuguese: DOP Lagos, DOP Lagoa, DOP Portimão and DOP Tavira.

The Algarve Wine-growing Commission (CVA), as the certifying body accredited by the Portuguese Accreditation Institute (IPAC), is responsible for monitoring and certifying the wines produced in the region, ensuring the quality of the wines being sold on the market and guaranteeing their authenticity and traceability. The commission is also responsible for protecting and promoting its designations.

As a benchmark international tourist destination, the Algarve should be promoting its gastronomy and wines as a crucial complement to its tourism offering, particularly in the form of visits to estates and wineries, enhanced by a “Wine Route” that is currently being implemented with the full backing of the region: local authorities, tourism, culture, agriculture and the environment. With this in mind, and with the support of the Algarve Tourism Board, we are working on an advertising plan aimed at promoting the region’s wines, wineries and estates, as well as the creation of the official website of the “Algarve Wine Route”, making it easier for tourists and the general public to access these spaces.

The nominations and awards won by Algarve wines clearly show the recognition of the work done by the wine-growers and producers, which ranges from planting new vines using the best techniques and grape varieties to the setting up of wineries that meet the most demanding standards and offering the services of renowned oenologists. The entire process has culminated in the production of excellent wines, whose quality is unanimously applauded.

As a final note, we would like to emphasise the Algarve Tourism Board’s generous contribution towards the promotion of the region’s wines, particularly through the publication of this “Wine Guide”. We believe that the information on wineries, estates and wines provided in this publication will not only be very useful but will also help enhance our region’s tourism offering, wine tourism and cultural and gastronomic heritage.

Carlos Gracias
President of the Algarve Wine-growing Commission
The purpose of an introductory note is to put the work in context and one way of doing this is by telling a story. And although the wines and the vineyards of the Algarve do have their story, and their history, this will be told, albeit briefly, on other pages of this guide.

What we propose to do here is to express some thoughts about the wines that are nowadays produced in the Algarve. But before we do so, we would like to extend a very special greeting to President Desidério Silva, Vice-President João Fernandes and the other members of the Executive Committee of the Algarve Tourism Board who, aware of the importance of Gastronomy and Wines as a component in the strategic development of the Algarve, as defined in the National Strategic Tourism Plan, took the decision to revise, update and republish this guide.

And a word of appreciation too to those in charge of the Algarve Wine Cooperative “Única” and to the producers of “estate” wines, without whom, thanks to their hard work, dedication and skill, we would not have the quality of wines that are produced these days in the Algarve.

The Algarve wine-producing region is coming of age, so the planting conditions and the care taken of the vines are similar to the latest practices used elsewhere in the wine-producing world. Similarly, almost all of the wineries in the Algarve are equipped with the most advanced technological solutions for the production of wine. Along with the regional grape varieties, the introduction of new certified varieties has benefited the wines, bringing added value to the entire production chain: good soil, a good climate and a good environment. Indeed, there has been a steady increase both in the number of producers and in the quality of the wines produced. There is a wider range of products on offer now than there was when the previous edition of the “Algarve Wine Guide” was launched.

The majority of Algarve wines are of above average quality, putting them on a par with the best that is produced in Portugal’s other wine regions. We have no doubt that the future of Algarve wines is promising, particularly in terms of quality, and this is why many producers are focusing on exporting their wines.

Through this publication, oenophiles, hoteliers, businesspeople, wine-lovers, and the general public will have at their disposal a means to (re)discover and better appreciate the quality of our wines.

As António Augusto Aguiar said: “I love the vine as the most beautiful plant that Mother Nature gave the earth”.

Glossary

Note about the head sommelier
“The Wines of the Algarve are as good as the best wines that are produced in the wine-producing areas of Portugal, and are in no way inferior to many others produced in wine-growing countries that are well-known worldwide for the excellence of their wines.”

Virgilio Loureiro (1)

All wines that are produced in different regions share something of their history and their heritage. And the Algarve is no exception. The past, the present, the culture, the enchantments and disenchantments of the area all have an influence on the richness, the subtlety of the colour and the strong aromas and flavours of the wines that are produced here. But there is also a specific history underlying the vineyards of the Algarve terroir that deserves to be recorded.

The importance of vineyards in the south of Portugal dates back to the Arab presence, a time when grapes were already grown and wines of good quality (and highly appreciated!) were exported.

The presence of the Muslims in the Algarve led not only to the cultivation of vines but also to the export trade, at least in Tavira. The economic organisation established during the Muslim period was adopted by the Christians who maintained it after the re-conquest.

It is since the reign of D. Afonso III that wine-growing has developed in the Algarve. In the charter of Silves, it can be seen how important the maritime trade in Algarve wines was for the kings of Portugal, a source of wealth for the kingdom from the outset. It played an important part in the economy of the Algarve at that time, and its importance for trade continued throughout the Middle Ages and into the beginning of the Modern Era. The region’s wine was exported during the 14th and 15th centuries, and it was also of great importance during the 16th century.

The struggle for independence in the 18th century and the increase in the export of wine from the Douro from the following century onwards had an effect on wine-growing in the Algarve. The upheaval caused by the war on the country’s economy and the high international profile of port, which occupied an almost exclusive position abroad, contributed to the Algarve’s wines being forgotten.

Meanwhile, the Douro wine-growing area was seriously affected by phylloxera (a disease of vines caused by an insect of the same name) which led to demand in other regions of the country for grapes which could be used for the preparation of wines for export, such as port. The Algarve supplied the Douro with thousands of hectolitres of its wine, to such an extent that, until recently, there was a crane at the railway station serving Lagoa that was used to load the barrels sent to the demarcated region in the north of the country. These facts – of great historical significance for the wines of Porto – are still little known today.

At talks given following the congresses of the exhibitions of London and Berlin in 1873, at which Portuguese wines had been promoted, António Augusto de Aguiar commented emphatically about the wines of the Algarve: “And they were pleasant to taste because they did not leave your mouth disappointed, like the wines of Bairrada, they do not numb your teeth, they have a delicacy and smoothness which are rarely found in the new wines of Portugal, they do not offend through excess tannins, they give us aromas of fig and almond, mulberries and strawberries which appear wild in the countryside, they benefit from the sea breeze, they are more Vinous than the wines of the Douro and Alentejo, they have an elegance that is not found in the Chateaux of Bordeaux.”

THE WINE-GROWING ALGARVE

Nowadays, wines of great quality are still produced in the Algarve, taking advantage of the region’s southerly location, the protection provided by the mountainous barrier of Monchique against the cold winds from the north and its exposure in a south-facing amphitheatre. Here the climate is perfect for vines.

“Algarve Regional Wine” is produced all over the region. The vines grow all along the coastline from Tavira to Lagos in rocky, red, clayey, sandy, limestone soils and in Silves sandstone. The typically Mediterranean climate and the environment are very favourable for wine growing. In light of the typicality these characteristics confer upon the wines, there are four “Protected Designations of Origin” (“DOP” in Portuguese) in the Algarve Wine-growing Region. Lagos, Portimão, Lagoa and Tavira.

But, on their own, location, climate and soil do not create an empire of wines. And so, the importance of using quality traditional grape varieties should be mentioned, for the production of good wines with a fruity flavour and low acidity, to which the sun generously adds a high alcohol content.

All about tasting

There is a certain mystique surrounding the sequence of tasting followed by wine professionals, in contrast with what people may think. It is rarely an easy process, given that there are many, many factors involved in the subject of wine which are a real challenge for those whose job is to analyse it. Here are some notes so that you can embark on a discovery of what each wine has to offer. And it is important to bear the following in mind: when you taste the wines of the Algarve, you are involved in a sensory act, but later, considerably later and without realising it, you are involved in an intellectual act.

Tasting versus Drinking

Tasting wines naturally requires knowledge and special attention. Many of the wines – in fact almost all of them – have subtleties of aroma, taste and texture that cannot be perceived in a casual and inattentive way. Far from it! When you are enjoying a glass of wine at a social event, at a wine bar or even in a restaurant, there are environmental factors such as tobaccos and perfumes which distract our attention from the wine. And so what is needed is concentration and a certain “tuning” of the nose. As for the wine, this must be at the temperature recommended for its consumption to allow it to display all its qualities. Irrespective of their different varieties, wines are individualistic. No two wines are the same and those whose job it is to taste them – and not merely to drink them – are obliged to respect this individuality. Only in this way will it be possible to derive pleasure from the wines you drink.
Three steps and three senses are all you need to evaluate the wine that you are ready to try. Sight, smell and taste together make up the art of appreciating the richness of each wine, and with such a sensory analysis anyone can decide if a wine is fluid, clear and characterful. Or even if it is astringent or has a good nose. You just need to look at it, smell it and taste it.

SIGHT

Your sight enables you to distinguish a wine’s colour, clarity and texture. There can be a range of nuances in the colour of a white or a red wine and the more intense it is the richer the wine will be. To check the wine’s clarity, hold the glass vertically against a white background or against a light source. Look at the brightness, at the intensity of the main colour present at the heart of the wine and at any variations of tone near the rim of the glass. Any suspended sediment must be removed before tasting. Now swirl the wine around the glass to assess its texture. The more viscous, unctuous or velvety the wine is as it runs down the glass, the richer it will be.

SMELL

As the name indicates, the sense of smell will reveal the series of aromas released by the wine. The primary aroma comes from the grape variety itself, the secondary from the vinification process (alcoholic fermentation) and the third results from the ageing and maturation of the wine. It is the relationship between these three that will enable you, as you swirl your glass, to notice the intensity (slight, medium or pronounced), the degree of maturity (young, mature, tired or oxidised) and the character of a wine (fruity, floral, woody, herby, spicy etc).

TASTE

This is the most eagerly anticipated moment of the tasting when the molecules in the wine stimulate the taste buds to the sweet, savoury, acid or bitter flavours. When the wine first touches your mouth, roll it smoothly around your palate, draw air in through the wine and feel the quality of the texture and the different flavours on your taste buds. Finally, notice the time that the wine spends in your mouth. If its persistence is long, you are looking at a good wine.
ABOUT WINE AND ITS COMPOSITION

Wine – This is the product obtained exclusively through (total or partial) alcoholic fermentation of fresh grapes coming from different grape varieties. The grapes are crushed, pressed or processed through other technological means permitted by law. It is made up of:

- Water (must)
- Ethyl alcohol (sugar)
- Fixed organic acids (tartaric acid)
- Volatile organic acids (acetic acid)
- Mineral acids
- Acid salts
- Glycerine (velvety smoothness)
- Tannin (astringency)
- Colouring substances (colour)
- Mineral substances
- Nitric/nitrous substances
- Vitamins
- Fruitiness
- Aromas
- Other bouquets

The Temperature of the wine

The temperature at which the different types of wine should be consumed is a factor of great importance to ensure that they can be appreciated in the overall context of their organoleptic characteristics. Often this does not happen. So, remember: wine needs to obey certain rules and the temperature it is served at is one of them. Regardless of the type of wine – white, rosé, red, fortified, naturally sparkling or other similar types – however good it may be, it will lose some of its qualities if this rule is ignored. So what is the ideal temperature at which wine should be served? Get your thermometer ready and this table will help you find the answer, making it easier to enjoy any wine to the fullest in the future.

Quinta dos Lopes

Quinta dos Lopes is a family business. They opened what would be the future wine-making business in 1979, with a pioneering type of organic production, with which they achieved certification in 1987. Three years later, the winery was built, where table wines, regional wines and VQPRD have been produced since 2000.

The red and sweet wines from this Quinta are sold on the home and foreign markets. Countries such as Holland and Germany are regular clients for these organically produced drinks which represent a new style on the Algarve wine route. But there is more to Quinta dos Lopes than wine production; fruit and vegetables are also grown and sold here.

Note: Organically produced wine.
The Agricultural Company was founded in 2003 by two members of the same family. But the planting of vines there dates back to 2001 when Inácio Seromenho and Vítor Manuel Seromenho – father and son – decided to work together. The 16-hectare vineyard at Quinta de Ferrel in the civil parish of Luz was planted under the Vitis Programme. The grape varieties grown here are Castelão, Touriga-Nacional, Trincadeira, Syrah, Touriga-Francesa, Aragonez, Alicante-Bouschet, Cabernet-Sauvignon and Moscatel.

The decision came in 2006 to produce the red, white and rosé Vinho Regional Algarve wines and the red DOP Lagos wine, a total of approximately 12,000 bottles. The project to produce their own wines continued in 2007 and the same year 2,500 bottles of the new DOP Lagos Reserva 2007 were produced, which was awarded the silver medal at the competition of Algarve wines at Fatacil 2008.

Their current aim is to progress further and produce better and better wine up to perhaps as many as 50,000 bottles.

Quinta da Horta Nova

A large part of this 15,000-square-metre estate is occupied by vineyards from which superior quality red wines are produced. Peacefully located near the town of Luz (one of the best-known in the Algarve), the Horta Nova estate is home to the family-run wine company “Vinhos BS” (Borges da Silva). Produced in the western Algarve (known as the “Barlavento”) from Aragonez and Trincadeira grape varieties, these nectars are as ambitious as could be: their goal is to meet the needs of the most demanding aficionados.

Having one of their labels win a prize at Fatacil – southern Portugal’s most prestigious fair – has in no small way contributed to that mission. The BS Tinto Colheita Seleccionada (BS Red Selected Harvest) 2012 won the silver medal at this Algarve exhibition, which thereby recognised the noteworthy success not only of the wine itself but also of the oenologists who created it and who have been monitoring it practically every step of the way, from harvesting to bottling: Paulo Fonseca and Jorge Magalhães.

Monte da Casteleja

It was on the farm near Lagos that he inherited from his grandfather that Guillaume Leroux fulfilled the dream he had been nurturing throughout his training in oenology. His studies in France, Portugal and Australia, together with the professional experience he gained in the Douro, provided the inspiration he needed to get his wine-growing project underway, 15 years ago, in the land of his Algarve roots.

Motivated by the desire to reinstate autochthonous varieties long-forgotten in the region, Guillaume decided to plant some rare, high-quality varieties such as the Bastardo, which was endangered in the region. The winery operates a combination of ancient techniques such as foot-treading and ageing in wood with modern oenology. The farming methods employed in the vineyard are intended to produce a greater concentration of grapes, including an increase in the density per hectare and the use of traditional Guyot pruning techniques. With great mastery, the producer gradually became acquainted with the challenges of the terroir, realising how the clay and limestone soils and the proximity to the sea were factors that conferred special characteristics on his wines. As a result of all this alchemy, the whites, reds and rosés produced are distinctive, with complex fruity and floral aromas, mouth-filling body and tannins that impart noteworthy longevity.

Today, Monte da Casteleja is a project that incorporates a variety of complementary activities, associating wine-growing with agrotourism and horticulture. The love for the land remains, but now encompasses a greater concern for the environment: the estate has been certified in organic farming since 2011, a fundamental step on its route to sustainability and the increasing of its biodiversity.

Monte do Além

Lying between the ocean and the town of Odiáxere is the place where Vinciane and Parviz decided to plant 5.5 hectares of vines. The Monte do Além Beiradas wine-growing project was born in 2000, based on the conviction that the constant summer sunshine, the nights refreshed by the proximity to the sea, and the respectful treatment of the soil using organic farming methods would be the perfect way to obtain good grapes and make good wine.

And they were right. Backed by this philosophy, the estate gave rise to delicate reds and rosés, resulting from a rigorous production process. After being harvested by hand, the grapes are transported to the winery (built in 2009) and the vinification process begins with approximately three weeks’ fermentation in temperature-controlled stainless steel vats. This is followed by ageing in French oak barrels for around eighteen months in order to obtain the final result which can now be found on the market.

Algarve Wine Guide
Quinta dos Eucaliptos

Quinta dos Eucaliptos, located at a place called Sítio do Cascalho in Odiáxere, once belonged to a traditional family from Lagos. In 1980, it came into the hands of the Serpa Leitão family, who devoted themselves to agricultural activities, turning the property into a sustainable undertaking for the future generations.

Particular care was taken of the vines, as a preferential crop. In 1985, eight hectares were planted with table grapes, most of which were intended for the most demanding markets. At that time, Moscatel grapes were already being vinified in the now extinct Adega Cooperativa de Lagos, which was responsible for producing some famous fortified wines, such as Moscatel de Lagos.

Nowadays, Quinta dos Eucaliptos has found the right balance between the four-hectare plantation of stone pine (for the pine nuts), four hectares of carob trees and four hectares of new vines, entirely intended for the production of quality wines, promoting the Portuguese grape varieties that are best adapted to the region’s edaphoclimatic conditions.

As well as these crops, the family’s curious passion for breeding Lusitano horses and Algarve churra sheep has resulted in the rest of the farm being occupied by natural pasture. And it also means that there is more to the project than wine-growing, a small peculiarity that makes a visit to the site even more interesting.

Goes well with
A good assortment of Algarve smoked sausages and traditional dishes made with pork, mutton and poultry. Well-prepared red meats cooked in the oven, and grilled tenderloin or sirloin. A good board of Portuguese cheeses.
PORTIMÃO DOP
In 1999, the Morgado da Torre winery was set up on one of the oldest agricultural properties in the municipality of Portimão (it has belonged to the Mendes family since 1865). This winery would be the first to produce estate wines in the Algarve with the classification Protected Designation of Origin (DOP Portimão). So, it made history.

Nowadays it covers a total area of 162 hectares, divided between the growing of citrus fruits, irrigated cereal crops, cork oaks, dried fruits and an area of 20 hectares of vineyards operating an integrated production system, which respects the environment and protects the health of both consumer and farmer.

The grapes are harvested by hand and the varieties are selected meticulously. The varieties grown are Touriga-Nacional, Alicante-Bouschet, Aragonez, Syrah, Cabernet-Sauvignon, Moscatel-Roxo, Arinto, Verdelho, Antão-Vaz, Sauvignon-Blanc, Chardonnay and Moscatel. The resulting wines display the full personality of their very distinctive identities, grown on gentle south-facing slopes which benefit from the mild influence of the sea breezes. Consequently, and as one would expect, they are fruity, well-structured and have good aromas.

Red

A contemporary red

Region | Algarve/Portimão DOP
Classification | Vinho Regional Algarve
Grape varieties | Aragonez, Touriga-Nacional, Syrah and Cabernet-Sauvignon
Alcohol content | 13.68%

Serving temperature | 18 ºC

Appearance | Intense, bright garnet colour.
Aroma | Very generous fruity aroma of red fruits such as black cherries and plums. Good notes of dried green pepper and cloves, thanks to its 12 months spent ageing in young French oak barrels.

Flavour | In the mouth, it confirms the aromas. A well-designed and voluminous but very elegant wine. Sweet, subtle tannins, good acidity and perfect alcohol content. This is a contemporary red with the support of a classic past. Long, persistent and charming finish.

Goes well with | Smoked sausages and dry-cured hams from the Algarve, traditional Portuguese meat dishes, well-seasoned game dishes, poultry cooked in the pot or in the oven, gourmet meat dishes and Portuguese cheeses.
Alcalar Red

A chocolaty wine with an intense finish

Region: Algarve/Portimão DOP
Classification: Vinho Regional Algarve
Grape varieties: Touriga-Nacional and Cabernet-Sauvignon
Alcohol content: 13.55%

Serving temperature: 18 ºC
Appearance: Deep ruby.
Aroma: Of very ripe, red fruits with slight floral notes. Having aged for six months in French oak casks, it has acquired aromatic nuances of chocolate.
Flavour: A wine with a full flavour. The red fruits are clearly in evidence, giving rise to the chocolaty notes. Very well-rounded, fully emphasising the aromas and flavours. Sweetish tannins, the right acidity and ideal alcohol content. A vibrant, silky wine of great elegance, with an intense, warm finish.

Goes well with: Smoked sausages and dry-cured hams from the Algarve, well-prepared game dishes, traditional Algarve red meat dishes, fish stews and seafood, well-seasoned red meat and poultry and a board of Portuguese cheeses.

Note: This is the only wine in the Algarve that is produced using the process of foot-treading.

Appearance
Garnet colour. Clear and transparent.

Aroma
Ripe red fruits and raisins. Noble in the overall context of its organic components. Complex fragrance. The aroma of the oak in which it was aged is subtly present.

Flavour
Displays youth and an excellent organic structure which can be tasted on the palate. Of good persistence, it has a long finish. To be consumed immediately or to store.

Goes well with
A good range of sausages and dry-cured ham from the Algarve serra, traditional Portuguese cuisine, well-made red meat, poultry and game dishes, a board of Portuguese and international cheeses.

Topaz colour. Clear and bright.

Intense aroma with notes of orange, honey and flowers. This is a very elegant fortified wine which is beginning to display its great quality. It clearly reveals its origins in the soil of the Algarve's Barrocal, as well as its environment and climate.

In the mouth, it confirms its charm. Cheerful and courageous not only in the aromas but also in its great quality. It is a further example of the excellent quality fortified wines which have been produced in the Algarve over the years.

Refined desserts, social gatherings, an assortment of canapés appropriate to a fortified and digestif wine or simply as an aperitif.

Appearance
Ruby colour. Clear and bright.

Aroma
Ripe fruit, black plum jam and black morello cherries. This wine spent 36 months ageing in French oak barrels. It presents some notes of vanilla originating from the wood in which it aged.

Flavour
Quite concentrated, complex and vigorous wine. Tannins are in evidence, but velvety. Very good acidity and equally good alcohol content. A fine “marriage” between nose and mouth. Long, charming finish, making it a fortified wine of great quality.

Goes well with
A selection of canapés, refined desserts and social gatherings. Good as a digestif.
Herdade dos Pimenteis

Herdade dos Pimenteis is located in Portimão, five kilometres from the city centre, and it occupies 38 hectares of the Morgado da Torre in Penina. On 17 of these hectares, the vines are grown using an integrated production system that respects all the norms of environmental protection.

The excellent terroir, consisting of clay and limestone soil, is planted with the grape varieties Aragonez, Syrah, Touriga-Nacional, Cabernet-Sauvignon, Trincadeira, Tinto-Cão and Moscatel-Branco, which benefit from long hours of sunshine and the sea breeze.

This natural combination produces five harmonious, fruity wines, which have structure and are rich in aromas: Herdade dos Pimenteis White, Herdade dos Pimenteis Rosé, Herdade dos Pimenteis Colheita Selecionada, Herdade dos Pimenteis Touriga-Nacional and Herdade dos Pimenteis Reserva.

Quinta da Penina

This wine-growing project has vineyards in two municipalities: Portimão (Quinta da Penina) and Lagoa (Quinta dos Cabeços). Both estates have different terroirs which give each grape variety unique characteristics, reflected in the excellent wines made and bottled at their own winery.

It all began in 2000, when the producer planted a 10-hectare vineyard on a property that was previously used to grow citrus fruit. And so Quinta da Penina was born. Just one year later, it would begin sharing its production with Quinta dos Cabeços. The goal was to obtain grapes from two distinct areas in order to produce wines with equally distinct qualities. And it worked.

The reds are currently made from Touriga-Nacional, Trincadeira, Aragonez, Alicante-Bouschet, Cabernet-Sauvignon, Syrah and Petit-Verdot grapes, while the varieties used for the whites are Arinto, Crato-Branco, Viosinho, Cerceal and Viognier.

The wines can be found at restaurants throughout the Algarve, at off-licences, a few small supermarkets and on-site at Quinta da Penina, for tasting.

Quinta do Francês

Patrick Agostini is another producer based in the Algarve. Coming from an Italian family with a long wine-making tradition, he inherited their passion and qualified in Oenology and Viticulture in Bordeaux.

After a great deal of searching, he found the perfect place to get his project up and running in the valley of the Odelouca Stream. He called it Quinta do Francês and has devoted himself heart and soul to transforming the acid, schist soil into nine hectares of vineyard.

This family property in the heart of the uplands around Silves comprises vineyards planted with French grape varieties from Bordeaux and the Rhone (Cabernet-Sauvignon and Syrah) and Portuguese grape varieties (Trincadeira and Tinta-Roriz). The estate also boasts a modern winery, where the wines uniquely known as “Quinta do Francês” and “Odelouca” are bottled, and underground cellars on a slope beside the vineyard.

  Marked ruby colour. Clear and bright.

- Aroma
  Very ripe red fruit reminiscent of fruit jams. A wine which has been well vinified in stainless steel vats. A good red wine starts here.

- Flavour
  Very elegant palate, consistently fruity. The velvety tannins, food acidity and alcohol content make this a smooth, well-rounded wine. Very pleasant and consumer orientated. Beautifully persistent finish.

- Goes well with
  An assortment of smoked sausages and dry-cured ham from the Algarve serra, good traditional Algarve cuisine based on poultry which has been well prepared in the pot or in the oven, and well-prepared game bird dishes. A board of Portuguese cheeses.

Classification
Vinho Regional Algarve

Grape varieties
Trincadeira, Aragonez, Cabernet-Sauvignon and Syrah

Alcohol content
15%

18 °C

Appearance
Dark ruby colour. Clear and bright.

Aroma
Exuberant aroma of black forest fruits with floral nuances, rock-rose and spices.

Flavour
A great wine with velvety tannins, good acidity and the ideal alcohol content. Thanks to its 14 months spent ageing in young French oak barrels, it has acquired notes of artichokes, spices (such as dried green pepper) and vanilla. Very well-rounded. Long, elegant, beautiful finish. Extremely elegant and impossible to resist.

Goes well with
Smoked sausages and dry-cured ham from the Algarve serra, chicken terrine, game bird pâtés, dry-cured Iberian pork ham, smoked salmon and caviar, traditional Portuguese cuisine based on grilled meats, Portuguese and international cheeses.

Serving temperature 18 °C

Appearance Full-bodied, ruby colour. Clear and bright.

Aroma Exuberant aroma of forest fruits (such as blackberries and raspberries). The Syrah grape variety makes an impressive contribution to the aromas. Aged in new barrels made of French oak, the wine has acquired chocolaty, black pepper and tobacco notes. So its great profile is easily understood.

Flavour This is a wine with great structure, where the organoleptic components – the special fruitiness of the grape variety, the vinification, the velvety tannins and good acidity from the wood in which it aged and matured over 17 months – make a fabulous base. Great personality, energetic and wilful. This red dignifies the wines produced in the Algarve wine-growing region; its finish is an anthem to the great wines.

Goes well with Delicacies prepared with class and Portuguese and international cheeses.
Monte dos Salicos

After inheriting a large property where, amid orange and carob trees, there were traces of an abandoned vineyard, António Cabrita decided to make it productive again as a means of supporting his legacy.

And if, initially, his entire crop was sold to the Adega Cooperativa de Lagoa for the production of their regional wine, as the years passed the vines grew and so did the dream of creating a new wine from the best Monte dos Salicos grape varieties. And so, two reds were produced that were named after the estate: MDS.

Thanks to the current investment by the owner’s son, Pedro Cabrita, not only is a bigger and better crop expected, but also a new focus on different varieties of this type of wine, which is a recent addition to the Algarve’s very characteristic wine production.

An energetic and pure red

Region: Algar/Lagoa DOP
Classification: Vinho Regional Algarve
Grape varieties: Aragonez, Touriga-Nacional, Syrah and Cabernet-Sauvignon
Alcohol content: 13%
Serving temperature: 18 ºC

appearance

Deep, bright garnet colour.

Aroma

Red fruits that go very well with the forest fruits, such as blackberries and raspberries. This wine spent 10 months ageing in French oak barrels, acquiring notes of vanilla, dried green pepper and coffee.

Flavour

A wine with a full flavour, harmonious in its sweetish tannins, acidity and alcohol content. Very well-rounded and dignified. This wine has an advantage over the estate’s other wine, MDS, in that it spent more time ageing, had a longer period of vinification and was cared for more meticulously. It has a very elegant, long, steady, energetic and pure finish.

Goes well with

A selection of smoked sausages and dry-cured hams from the Algarve, traditional Algarve meat dishes and oily fish done in the oven, gourmet meat dishes and a board of Portuguese cheeses.
Quinta dos Vales

Located in Estômbar, this is a magnificent estate where wine and art combine in a special way. The property covers almost 50 hectares, 18.5 of which are used for vines. A number of different wines are produced, under the supervision of renowned oenologists.

The grapes are harvested by hand, selected in the field, destalked and crushed. In the winery, fermentation is carried out at meticulously controlled temperatures, the end result of which are the divine wines, ready to be appreciated on site in the tasting room.

It is nice to see the area reserved on the estate for animals: goats, birds, the Algarve’s autochthonous churro sheep, pigs, horses, donkeys and a small herd of deer, bring new life to the site. But this is not the estate’s only special attraction because alongside the wines and the animals, there is also room for art, with a number of sculptures on display around the property.

So there are many reasons to pay a visit Quinta dos Vales or to stay in one of its three country houses or four apartments.

Aroma Tropical fruits, some floral notes and hints of Barrocal citrus fruit, and a slight touch of spices. Its aromas are subtly elegant and fresh.

Flavour Very fresh. Having aged for six months in new French oak casks and one month in stainless steel vats, the aromas are clearly in evidence. The oak has given it a slight hint of vanilla and beautiful light notes of spices. Very charming, mouth-filling and impressive in terms of aromas/flavours. Long, persistent, beautiful and personalised finish. Promises continuity.

Goes well with Exotic salads with appropriate dressings, fish, seafood and shellfish salads dressed with cocktail sauce, grilled fish and seafood, traditional Portuguese and gourmet fish, seafood and shellfish dishes. Good as an aperitif.

The white of the future

Region: Algarve/Lagoa DOP
Classification: Vinho Regional Algarve
Grape varieties: Viognier
Alcohol content: 14.5%

Serving temperature: 7 °C

Appearance: Straw colour with greenish hints. Clear and bright.

Aroma: Mineral notes and ripe tropical fruit. Very fresh and elegant aromas that also impart slight fragrances of vanilla and chocolate. Very residual overall aroma.

Flavour: Complete stability between the aromas and the flavours, with excellent acidity. Cheerful, mineral and fruity. Long, noble, refined finish. This is a wine with much to give in the future.

Goes well with: Fish, seafood and shellfish salads, white meats, smoked and marinated salmon, traditional Algarve fish, seafood and shellfish dishes, grilled fish and seafood and salt cod. Good as an aperitif.

Note:
Vinified in new French oak barrels, where it remained for three months to stabilise (and another three in stainless steel vats).

Appearance

Redcurrant red. Clear and bright.

Aroma

Fresh aroma of redcurrants and strawberries. Very elegant freshness in the nose.

Flavour

After pressing and undergoing skin maceration, the grapes were vinified in stainless steel vats for six months. The aromas make this rosé a wine with an elegant profile in the mouth and which is particularly pleasurable to taste, with the fruitiness clearly in evidence. It has a very persistent, beautifully charming finish.

Goes well with

Traditional Algarve oily fish, seafood and shellfish dishes, grilled white meats and lightly-seasoned poultry cooked in the pot. Also good for late afternoon socialising in summer along with a good selection of canapés.

The history of Única is recent and original, starting with the name (= unique, single, sole) which refers to the merger of the two cooperative wineries of the Algarve – of Lagoa and Lagos – into just one.

In 2007, the first steps were taken to turn this idea into a concrete project, and although there is still no scheduled date for the inauguration of the premises of the new winery, which will be built on the site of the old Lagoa Agrarian Station, wines are already being produced there. How is this possible? The answer is simple: until Única opens its own doors, it will continue to operate on the premises of the Adega Cooperativa de Lagoa, one of the first in the country, receiving the grapes from the cooperative members in Lagos to be turned into the wines we are already acquainted with.

At that time, all the wines, all these strong brands – everything, in fact – will be brought together under one roof at the Adega Cooperativa do Algarve, with the aim of improving the manner in which wine production operates in the region. And along with good grapes, as much technology as is needed.

Deep, bright garnet colour.

Aroma

Very intense in the nose, where there is a good balance of forest fruits, blackberries, jelly and red fruits. Fine and mineral. Velvety tannins, good acidity and alcohol content. A typical, well-rounded wine.

Flavour

Balanced, smooth, elegant and seductive palate. Persistent overall. The finish has elegant notes of jelly.

Goes well with

A good selection of smoked sausages and dry-cured hams from the Algarve, moderately-elaborate traditional Algarve meat and fish dishes prepared in the oven or in the pot. Well-seasoned poultry done in the oven, fish done in the oven with good aromatic herbs from the Algarve countryside.

Classification | Vinho Regional Algarve
Grape varieties | Crato-Preto, Aragonez, Castelão and Syrah
Alcohol content | 13%

Serving temperature | 17 ºC
Appearance | Bright garnet colour.
Aroma | Red fruits and jelly. A wine with a certain elegance. Tumultuous fermentation over eight days, with the second malolactic fermentation having been fundamental for the aromas to become better defined.
Flavour | The smooth tannins and the fruity jelly flavour give the wine a very balanced and pleasant structure. It has a pleasant finish ending with notes of ripe fruit.
Goes well with | Grilled red and white meat, elaborately-prepared game dishes, pâtés and a board of Algarve cheeses.

Quinta de Mata-Mouros

Quinta de Mata-Mouros is located on the left bank of the River Arade, opposite the beautiful, historical city of Silves. Fruits typical of the region, such as figs, almonds, carob and loquats, have been grown on its 120 hectares for centuries.

It could be said that this production of tasty fruit was a good omen for the planting of vines on the slopes of the estate in April 2000. Today, a total of 12 hectares have already been planted: 10 with red grape varieties (Aragonez, Touriga-Nacional, Sousão and Cabernet-Sauvignon) and two with white varieties (Arinto and Alvarinho). The grapes are fermented in the modern, well-equipped winery at the entrance to the estate, alongside the emblematic “Convent of Paradise” built in the 18th century.

The “Convent of Paradise” project, a partnership between the Pereira Coutinho family (who own Mata-Mouros) and the Soares family, got underway in January 2012, with the aim of exploiting the estate’s wine-growing potential.

The wine-growing and oenology are now the responsibility of the Herdade da Malhadinha Nova, and more precisely of engineers Manuel Letras and Rui Venâncio (wine-growing) and engineers Luís Duarte and Nuno Gonzalez (oenology). The marketing and promotion of the wines are handled by the organisation Garrafeira Soares.

We are convinced that the wines produced at Quinta de Mata-Mouros will very soon be a credit to a region of such great tradition and huge potential as the Algarve.

Quinta do Barradas

Hugely passionate about the art of wine-growing, Luís Pequeno decided to plant a vineyard with Touriga-Nacional, Syrah and Aragonez grape varieties in 2006. Four years later he had his first harvest and the high quality was evident from the outset.

Quinta do Barradas is located in what is considered to be the best part of the Algarve for the production of excellent wines. It lies south of Silves at a height of 60 metres and the predominant north winds make for fresher wines.

All the work on the vineyard is done manually – with pruning of up to 40% of the fruit in order to obtain the best wines possible – always bearing in mind the old maxim that wine is made in the vineyard.

Quinta do Barradas also boasts a restaurant which is well-known in the Algarve and where diners can pair their meal with wines produced on the property.

Quinta do Outeiro

The Quinta do Outeiro in Silves is a 16-hectare property with good exposure, where the soils are mainly clay and limestone, very suitable for growing grapes.

Established in 2002, with 7.5 hectares of grapes of the varieties Syrah, Touriga-Nacional, Alicante-Bouschet, Aragonez and Trinca-deira, a new project began which determined that their output would go to the Adega Cooperativa de Lagoa.

With the characteristics of the grape varieties and the use of technology focusing on quality, the time for innovation in the history of the quinta arrived. In 2007, they employed the services of a company of viticultural consultants - WineID – and the services of a private winery, with the aim of making wine from part of their crop. And what today is called “Paxá” was born, a wine whose sole aim is to satisfy those who appreciate it.

An unusual rosé

Region | Algarve/Lagoa DOP
Classification | Vinho Regional Algarve
Grape varieties | Syrah and Touriga-Nacional
Alcohol content | 13.5%

Serving temperature | 10 ºC
Appearance | Pinkish colour. Clear and bright.
Aroma | A fresh, exuberant wine. Aromas of good quality red fruits.
Flavour | The palate is marked by the fruity notes and by some country notes such as rock-rose, giving it a rather unusual distinctiveness that improves this wine. Good acidity, elegant finish in the mouth. This is a rosé that honours the grape varieties from which it was made.

Goes well with | Well-composed fish, seafood and shellfish salads, white meat salads and appropriate dressings, moderately-seasoned fish cooked in the oven, grilled white meats and veal. Works well for socialising in the late afternoon in spring or summer.

Quinta Rosa

Have you ever dreamed of having your own wine? We have. As our labels indicate, we are wine-producers from Holland, operating in the Algarve. We use traditional methods to make our splendid organic nectars, with the help of the excellent climate and the red clay soil, packed with minerals and just perfect for wine-growing.

Uit Kelders Van Jaap wines are produced at the Quinta Rosa vineyard and winery. This is a common name for estates in Portugal, since roses have been planted here since ancient times to safeguard against the much-dreaded mildew.

This is, then, a small, new organic vineyard covering four hectares, created in 2007 in Silves, where the red clay and limestone soil is very beneficial to our vines. We grow eight red grape varieties – Syrah, Tempanillo, Tinto-Cão, Touriga-Nacional, Trincadeira, Merlot, Touriga-Francesa and Cabernet-Sauvignon – and one white, Chardonnay.

We will be delighted to welcome you and tell you our story (did you know we had our first harvest in 2010?) as well as showing you around our vineyard and winery.

Quinta da Vinha

The wine Cabrita comes from the picturesque Quinta da Vinha, owned by the Cabrita family. Located in the municipality of Silves, it covers an area of no more than 6.6 hectares which, in terms of wine-growing properties, could be considered a family enterprise. And it is, in part.

The tradition of the Cabrita wine dates back to 1977. It was in that year that José André, a fruit trader, acquired the quinta and started producing traditional Algarve grapes such as Crato, Manteúdo, Negra-Mole and Castelão, and his “homemade” wine. In 1980, his son, José Manuel Cabrita, took over the business. And so a page was turned in the history of the Quinta da Vinha and innovations were introduced.

José Manuel sought the assistance of a firm of wine-making consultants - WineID – who were ready to take on the project. Between 2000 and 2001, the land was replanted with Touriga-Nacional, Trincadeira, Aragonez, Arinto and Verdelho, grape varieties that would show the Algarve’s potential.

In 2007, the red and rosé Cabrita wines first appeared with production of 11,300 and 3,000 bottles respectively. This beginning was seen as a bold move by young consumers, wine lovers and all other interested people looking for a quality wine at a very affordable price.

Today the Cabrita family is awaiting the arrival of a wine that will follow in the best tradition of its predecessors, and with equally serious ambitions.

Lemony straw colour. Clear and bright.

Very good notes of citrus fruit and pears. Beautifully fresh. The grapes are harvested selectively by hand. This wine was fermented in French oak barrels using the “bica aberta” (off skin) method.

An unusual wine that makes a good first impression on the palate. Wonderfully fresh, with a great personality and excellent tannins, acidity and alcohol content. Slight vanilla notes and a good presence of citrus fruit and pears. Beautiful, long and charming finish. Time is on its side.

Algarve fish, seafood and shellfish dishes, salt cod, well-prepared grilled red and white meats and gourmet fish, seafood and white meat dishes. Good with soft cheeses or at a social gathering, accompanied by a good assortment of canapés.

Appearance Smoked salmon colour. Clear and bright.

Aroma Somewhat rebellious due to the involvement of floral notes of citrus, very ripe red fruits, blackberries and red woodland raspberries. Very good freshness.

Flavour Sweet at first on the palate, but the acidity is not exaggerated. The sweetish tannins and alcohol content make this a beautiful rosé wine, very well-rounded, elegant, with good freshness and long, perfect tannins. Weighted and seductive.

Goes well with Exotic salads and barbecues of fish, seafood, fresh sausages, and red and white meats. Good for an enjoyable late afternoon social gathering in summertime, along with a selection of canapés.

Serving temperature 18 °C

Appearance
Concentrated black cherry colour. Bright.

Aroma
Intense but very elegant aroma of red and dried fruits, enveloped in notes of flowers, citrus fruit and rock-rose. Very well vinified. It has subtle aromas of vanilla and spices (such as dried green pepper) and toasted notes from spending eight months ageing in French oak barrels.

Flavour
Excellent volume. The grape varieties, vinification, wood, aroma and flavour make a happy “marriage”. The sweet tannins, excellent acidity and alcohol content contribute to its quality. Beautiful and elegant, it has a long, seductive and charming finish. We are in heaven.

Goes well with
A selection of smoked sausages and dry-cured hams from the Algarve serra, game, salt cod, gourmet grilled meat dishes and Portuguese and international cheeses.
Quinta João Clara

The story of this estate takes us back to the year 1975, when João Clara decided to purchase the property and plant his first vineyard. Located in Alcantarilha in the municipality of Silves, it now covers an area of 26 hectares, where various crops are grown, although the greatest emphasis is on the vineyard.

The first wine with the João Clara label was launched in 2006. This edition is the dream and work of a young producer, Joaquim Alves, who has chosen António Macanita as oenologist and Júlio Antão as the artist who will "dress" the first bottle and design the brand image.

Currently, the estate is in the hands of João Clara’s descendants, who are looking after it with the meticulous care and affection needed to make quality wines. There are now six on the market, their palates taken from the grape varieties Trincadeira, Aragonez, Crato-Branco, Touriga-Nacional, Alicante-Bouschet, Negra-Mole, Arinto, Verdelho and Moscatel.

Appearance
Lemony yellow colour. Clear and bright.
Aroma
Beautifully mouth-filling in its aromas of flowers and tropical fruits, making this a very elegant wine with good freshness.
Flavour
Gently tropical palate with the combination of floral notes and tropical fruits clearly evident. Very serious and fine, with a lot of acidity and generally excellent overall. There is a perfect union between the aromas and the flavours. It has a beautiful, long and very charming finish.

Goes well with
Traditional Algarve dishes of fish, seafood and shellfish, well-prepared poultry and grilled white meats. Also good as an aperitif.

Note:
This wine should be drunk from a red wine glass in order to maintain all its organoleptic mouth-filling qualities.

Aroma
Great quality with the black cherry being duly noted. The Syrah grape variety is clearly in evidence, as are other quality red fruits and spices.

Flavour
A wine with a full flavour. Seductive tannins, good acidity and excellent alcohol content due to the grape varieties and the vinification. Unrivalled quality in the aromas and flavours, which go together well due to the 28 months spent ageing in French oak and in bottles. The finish is long, beautiful and charming. It is a pleasure to see this wine's confirmation.

Quinta do Barranco Longo

Quinta do Barranco Longo is located in the heart of the Algarve between Algoz and São Bartolomeu de Messines. The estate is run by Rui Virginia, a producer who dreamed of creating a personalised wine, a wine that would be bold and high in quality, taking the Algarve into the realm of select wines. In order to realise his project, he put together a young and qualified team which was to turn the estate into a model vineyard.

And it is precisely this vineyard that is run according to strict Integrated Production plans: throughout each annual cycle, various interventions are carried out, allowing improvements to be made in production capacity, maturation and the health of the grapes. And if we add to that the excellent climate and soil conditions in the Algarve’s Barrocal, the clay and limestone soils and the meticulously selected grape varieties, everything is in place to ensure high-quality grape production in a perfect terroir.

The estate’s wine cellar was also designed with an eye to the future and features state-of-the-art modern equipment. The wines obtained as a result of this commitment to understanding the vines, the grape varieties and the vinification techniques have their own special style and great personality. Taste them and see!

- Appearance
  - Golden citrus colour. Clear and bright.

- Aroma
  - Very fruity with subtle notes of the French oak in which it was fermented. Before the transformation process began, the solid parts (skin and pips) were removed and only the must was fermented. It presents vanilla notes. The fruitiness of peach and pineapple is present.

- Flavour
  - The palate reveals what was said about the aromas. The freshness is fabulous. A complex wine, with body but nevertheless elegant, full and charming, with persistence, creamy and very well-balanced. It has a long, beautiful finish. Overall, it can be said to be a “happy marriage”.

White

A high-quality Viognier

Region: Algarve/Lagoa DOP
Classification: Vinho Regional Algarve
Grape varieties: Viognier
Alcohol content: 13.5%

Serving temperature: 11 °C
Aroma: Excellent floral notes and very fruity, in a fine, delicate and fresh style that is in tune with the grape variety’s profile.
Flavour: Very elegant palate. Good volume of palate, perfect in acidity and its long finish, this Viognier is indeed a white of great quality.

Goes well with: Algarve fish dishes, seafood and shellfish, sushi and sashimi (and other Asian dishes prepared in similar fashion), grilled fish and seafood, gourmet cuisine and fish, seafood and shellfish stew. Also very good to enjoy in the late afternoon sunshine, along with a selection of canapés.

*A good "tyrant"

Region: Algarve/Lagoa DOP
Classification: Table Wine
Grape varieties: Arinto, Chardonnay and Viognier
Alcohol content: 14%
Serving temperature: 11 °C

Aroma: Mineral with excellent floral touches and good notes of apricot and pear. In the nose, it is clearly a wine with a strong personality, unctuous and superb.

Flavour: All the characteristics of the aromas and the unrivalled character of the green Hungarian oak in which it fermented and was aged for 12 months can be noted in the palate. With excellent tannins, acidity and alcohol content, this wine is a tyrant (but a good one). It says to us, “I’ve arrived and I’m here to stay”. Unusually for a white, it has a long, fine finish.

Goes well with: Game pâtés, chicken terrines, salads made with fish and seafood, well-prepared poultry dishes, and dishes with fish, seafood and shellfish. Good as an aperitif or at a social gathering, accompanied by assorted canapés.

Aroma
Red fruits with notes of French and American oak, in which it fermented and aged for three months, giving it the subtleness of a hint of vanilla. A very fresh wine.

Flavour
What was said about the aromas is also true of the flavour. There is a great affinity in the palate and, unusually for Portuguese rosés, it is full-bodied. Full, creamy and very well-balanced. Well-rounded and with long and charming persistence. Just what is needed for a good meal.

Goes well with
Smoked sea and river fish, and seafood platters with good condiments. Also good with pâtés, game terrines, white meats, grilled fish and seafood, or for a social gathering with a good selection of canapés.

Red

A red that deserves recognition

Region: Algarve/Lagoa DOP
Classification: Vinho Regional Algarve
Grape varieties: Aragonez and Cabernet-Sauvignon
Alcohol content: 13%

Serving temperature: 18 °C

Appearance: Ruby colour. Clear and bright.

Aroma: Excellent freshness in the aromas, where the variety of very ripe, high-quality red fruits can clearly be noted.

Flavour: Due to the type of vinification, the palate reveals the taste of very ripe red fruit and spices such as green pepper and cloves. It has velvety tannins, excellent acidity and the perfect alcohol content, all of which make it a well-rounded wine, harmonious in its aromas and flavours. It has a long, beautiful finish. It deserves to be recognised.

Goes well with: An assortment of smoked sausages and dry-cured ham from the Algarve, traditional Algarve dishes made with white meats cooked in the pot or in the oven and grilled red meats, traditional Portuguese salt cod dishes, and quality Portuguese cheese.

Note: It is best consumed on the day of opening. It can and should be decanted.

Flavour A naturally sparkling rosé of unrivalled class, with an excellent mousse. Lightly acidic, which is very good in a naturally sparkling, dry wine. The first fermentation took place in stainless steel vats at controlled temperatures and the second took place in the bottle using the classic method. After this, it was aged for 30 months before the disgorging process.

Goes well with Many different delicacies and social occasions where it is accompanied by an assortment of canapés.
Quinta do Moinho

The Adega do Cantor has its own special name and a simple explanation: it is a winery belonging to a singer - Sir Cliff Richard. Located in Guia in Albufeira, it produces wine from three nearby quintas: Quinta do Moinho, Quinta do Miradouro and Quinta Vale do Sobreiro.

The planting of the vines at Quinta do Moinho began in 1997, and it was the subject of detailed study by the eminent viticulturalist Richard Smart. Here they use the most modern wine-growing systems, which include canopy management, a system for the vertical positioning of the shoots and drip-feed irrigation.

At Miradouro – which started in 2001 – the winery itself is housed. This vineyard is the first in the Algarve to apply the Smart-Dyson system, Richard Smart’s innovative trellis system that divides the canopy vertically, allowing for an increase in the total foliage area and improving the light conditions in the fruiting area.

And lastly, Quinta Vale do Sobreiro. This is the most recent part of the property, which only started in 2004, and the grapes there are carefully harvested by hand.

The Adega do Cantor supplies the Algarve region with a variety of wines, and shows the public the art of producing the wines through guided tours.

Appearance
- Straw colour with young, greenish hints.

Aroma
- Floral and vibrant aroma of orange and tangerine from the Barrocal, very well combined with aromas of melon and banana.

Flavour
- Extremely fresh. Exciting notes of citrus fruits combined with luxurious melon fragrances. An excellent impact mid-palate, caused by a wine with meticulous structure and very good acidity. It has a long, refreshing, charming finish. Worth recommending and keeping in mind for the future.

Goes well with
- Smoked salmon, salmon fillet flambéed in brown sugar, couscous, chicken breast flambéed in cognac (served with mashed potato, mushrooms and spinach) and Algarve fish, seafood and shellfish dishes. Also good for a late afternoon social gathering, along with a selection of seafood canapés.

Appearance
Golden yellow colour with greenish hints.

Aroma
A refined combination of tropical fruits and floral notes. Having aged in French oak barrels, there is a slight hint of vanilla. The combination of aromas is charming.

Flavour
A subtle and refined combination of the aromas and the opulent and vibrant flavour of Guadeloupe melon, guava cheese, passion fruit, coffee and honey. Firm, sweetish tannins and excellent acidity and alcohol content. The rich combination of aromas and flavours gives this wine a very good overall structure. Long and very beautiful finish.

Goes well with
Asian fish and seafood salads. Dishes featuring fish, seafood and shellfish, grilled white meats, gourmet fish and seafood dishes and canapés made with seafood. Also good as an aperitif.

White

A perfumed white

Region: Algarve/Lagoa DOP
Classification: Vinho Regional Algarve
Grape varieties: Viognier
Alcohol content: 14%

Serving temperature: 10 °C
Appearance: Pale straw colour with greenish hints.
Aroma: Intense, perfumed, with vibrant floral notes and fruity aromas of peach and damson.
Flavour: This wine achieves an excellent “marriage” with its flavours. It is extremely fresh, having aged in stainless steel vats for six months followed by a further two months in bottles. It is very elegant and has a long finish where the floral and ripe fruit notes reappear. An unforgettable white wine.

Goes well with: Saffron and fennel risotto, seafood cataplana, lobster and grilled high-quality fish. Also good with traditional Algarve fish, seafood and shellfish dishes, and as an aperitif.

Appearance
Black cherry and scarlet colour. Clear and bright.

Aroma
Extremely elegant aroma of violet, redcurrant and blueberry, this red is heightened by deep notes of cinnamon, white pepper and aniseed.

Flavour
Soft, velvety tannins, good acidity and very good alcohol content. Excellent combination of aromas and palate, with a vigorous finish but always its own master. Very well-balanced, long, persistent finish. This is a red that honours the traditional wines of the Algarve.

Goes well with
An assortment of smoked sausages and dry-cured hams from the Algarve serra, traditional Portuguese meat dishes, grilled good-quality red meats, well-prepared game dishes, adequately-seasoned poultry dishes (cooked in the pot or in the oven), gourmet meat dishes and Portuguese and international cheeses.

Flavour
Succulent, dense and profound flavour of red fruits, especially plums. Elegantly balances complexity, the texture of the acidity, the velvety tannins and the alcohol content. Aged for 14 months in a combination of stainless steel vats and French oak. This is a good wine in terms of aromas and flavours, with hints of vanilla and coffee. It has a long, appealing finish; just what is needed for a good meal.

Goes well with
Smoked sausages and dry-cured ham from the Algarve serra, well-seasoned oven-roasted ham hock served with potatoes, chestnuts and mushrooms, also done in the oven, and a board of Portuguese cheeses.

A valiantly robust red

Region: Algarve/Lagoa DOP
Classification: Vinho Regional Algarve
Grape varieties: Syrah and Aragonez
Alcohol content: 14%
Serving temperature: 18 °C
Appearance: Intense ruby colour. Bright and translucent.
Aroma: Clean, with notes of black cherry and white pepper. Hints of mint are evident, along with mocha and cedar.
Flavour: Firm but smooth tannins, good acidity and balanced alcohol content, this wine is becoming well-rounded. This wine has a bold and elegant texture and a flavour of black fruits with traces of mocha and tobacco (from the French and American oak barrels where it spent 18 months ageing). A hugely seductive, valiantly robust wine. Long, pronounced and charming cherry-flavoured finish.
Goes well with: Traditional Portuguese meat dishes, salt cod dishes done in the oven and oily fish from the Algarve coast, grilled red meats, well-seasoned game dishes, gourmet meat dishes and Portuguese and international cheeses.
Quinta da Malaca

Sandy soil close to the Algarve seashore is the birthplace of Malaca wine, a wine made from traditional grape varieties, where Castelão makes its presence felt. The project began in 2010 at the initiative of Luís Cabrita, who owned nine hectares of vineyards, all located in Pera in the municipality of Silves.

Having been accustomed, over the course of many years, to watching his father produce wine for personal consumption using the traditional vinification method, Luís Cabrita decided to continue with his project as a kind of tribute to his deceased father.

Now using modern methods and techniques, the estate produces red, white and rosé wine called Malaca, since this is the name of the land where most of the vines grow.

Production has been increasing since 2010. In 2012, vinification amounted to around 13,000 litres. Malaca is marketed by the producer and can be found in local restaurants, in Porto and on the island of Madeira.

Aroma

Ripe red fruits, clearly evident and persistent. Enters the nose with great elegance and smoothness. From the aromas, one can tell immediately that it is a well-vinified red wine.

Flavour

A wine with a very beautiful structure, velvety tannins, good acidity and excellent alcohol content. Having aged in French oak barrels, it has subtle notes of vanilla and coffee, which make the perfect combination with the fruitiness of ripe fruit. The finish is persistent and seductive. This wine is a good newcomer.

Goes well with

An assortment of smoked sausages and dry-cured hams from the Algarve serra, traditional Algarve game dishes, barbecued white and red meats and poultry, and a good board of Portuguese cheeses.
Quinta Velha

The idea of producing wine came to German physicist and former industrial manager Helwig C. Ehlers back in 1998 while he was tasting an excellent Portuguese wine on the six-hectare property which he had recently purchased. As a result of that decision, he planted 1.5 hectares with Aragonez, Castelão, Syrah, Touriga-Nacional and Fernão-Pires grape varieties.

The first wine produced on this estate in Santa Bárbara de Nexe was entirely the work of Helwig and his wife; from harvesting to bottling, and with only the most basic equipment, the couple turned their hand to everything. The result was so good that they were keen to do more and excited at the idea of continuing their efforts.

Today, Helwig is a certified producer whose use of modern technology and with the collaboration of an oenologist (also German) has enabled him to transform what used to be a hobby into a serious – and tasty – business.

Appearance Straw colour. Clear and bright.

Aroma
A full-bodied wine in alcohol content, with aromas of citrus fruits and bergamot (a type of orange tree that is not grown much in Portugal). Aged in stainless steel vats for three months.

Flavour Succulent. The palate is dominated by citrus fruit flavours such as grapefruit, fresh lemon and bergamot. Good acidity and freshness, very drinkable. Persistent, creamy finish.

Goes well with Salt cod, either grilled and served with “punched” potatoes or well-seasoned and baked in the oven, traditional Algarve dishes with oily fish, either in a stew or baked in the oven, white meat and oily fish barbecues, grilled white meats and poultry cooked in the pot or in the oven.

Good and crisp

Region  Algarve/Lagoa DOP
Classification  Vinho Regional Algarve
Grape varieties  Castelão and Aragonez
Alcohol content  12.5%

Serving temperature  10 °C

Appearance  Light ruby colour. Clear and bright.

Aroma  Raspberries and slightly floral. Jovial and nicely fresh in the nose, very aromatic and elegant.

Flavour  Very fresh palate. Sweetish tannins, although not very light due to having undergone skin maceration. Good alcohol content, good acidity and very palatable. Aged in stainless steel vats for three months, which has made it nicely crisp. A good rosé.

Goes well with  Fish, seafood and shellfish salads dressed with cocktail sauce, typical Algarve cuisine based on fish, seafood and shellfish, white poultry cooked in the pot or in the oven, grilled white meats, mixed fish grill cooked over charcoal, seafood and fresh sausages. Good for a late afternoon social gathering in spring or summer, along with a selection of canapés.

TAVIRA DOP

200 Quinta dos Correias
Quinta dos Correias

This quinta was acquired by the Correia family during the reign of D. Maria and it has been kept in the family until today, although it was originally much bigger. It is located in Arroteia de Baixo in the parish of Luz de Tavira, with a direct view over the Ria Formosa and Fuzeta, the village that, in centuries past, lent its name to the quinta’s Atalaia, Bias and Alfanchia wines. In the 19th and 20th centuries, the wines were highly sought after by the English in Gibraltar, but also by the Portuguese.

The vineyard is on gentle slopes of sandy soil, with pebbles and clayey, with some limestone outcrops. In 2000, a new vineyard was planted with the grape varieties Castelão (65%), Cabernet-Sauvignon (20%) and Touriga-Nacional (15%). Next to the vineyard stands a winery that is artisanal in character, the result of the remodelling of the old winery, the stables and the barn. Here the red wine is made using some up-to-date technology, but basically following long-established methods and techniques.

Nowadays, it is the only winery in the Tavira demarcated region, meaning that its wines are much sought after, both for their quality and their exclusivity.

A fine wine

Region: Algar/Tavira DOP
Classification: Vinho Regional Algarve
Grape varieties: Cabernet-Sauvignon, Castelão and Aragonez
Alcohol content: 14%

Serving temperature: 18 ºC
Appearance: Ruby in colour, with reddish tinges. Clear and transparent.
Aroma: Of ripe red fruits, with floral notes, well-rounded in its main organic components. Produced in small tanks, it was aged for eight months in French oak barrels. It was not filtered, to ensure its primary aromas.
Flavour: Confirms its primary aromas. We are in the presence of a fine wine, persistent, elegant, with a good, prolonged finish with its sweetish tannins.
Goes well with: A selection of sausages and dry-cured ham from the Algarve serra, simply-prepared poultry and game fowl dishes, traditional Portuguese dishes quite simply prepared, a good board of Portuguese and international cheeses.
Quinta dos Correias
Glossary

Acidity  Essential component in wine, important for its balance and conservation. The different acids coming from the grapes and the fermentation contribute to a wine's acidity. When acidity is low, the wines are flat and uninteresting; in excess, it leaves a sharp feeling in the mouth; in the right quantity it produces fresh, lively wines. Acidity is one of the four basic tastes (sweet, salty, acid and bitter) identified by the taste buds on the tongue. It is the acids that give a wine the taste (and feeling) of freshness, and it is one of the main constituents and guarantors of its longevity.

“Afinado”  Term used to characterise a wine in which the processes of finishing and ageing are completed in a harmonious way so that the wine achieves its full potential.

Ageing  Period during which the wine remains stored in bottles or wooden barrels.

Alcoholic fermentation  Process of transforming the sugar of the grapes into ethyl alcohol and carbon dioxide. It is the alcoholic fermentation that converts the grape juice into wine.

Aroma  Group of smells produced by the substances present in the wine. Although the term is normally understood to be a smell (directly perceived through the nasal passage), in fact the aroma also comes to us when the wine is already in the mouth. There are three types of aromas: the primary aromas, coming from the grapes used in the wine-making process, which give the wine an aroma that is characteristic of the grape variety (floral, fruity or vegetable notes); the secondary aromas, coming from the fermentation process, that disappear after one or two years; and the tertiary aromas, which result from the maturing and ageing of the wines in wood or the bottle for years (also known as bouquet).

Attack  First impression the wine causes when it is tasted.

Balsamic  Resinous aroma (varnish, cedar, resin…) that can be found in some wines.

“Barrica”  Oak barrel with a capacity of 225 litres.

“Bica Aberta”  Wine-making process that is generally used in the production of white and rosé wines. It is a technique in which the fermentation is carried out in the must, separated from the solid parts of the grape (stalks and skins).

Blind tasting  Tasting where the identity of the wines being considered is hidden. Neither the brand/vineyard name nor the year of harvest is revealed, so that the tasters are not influenced by this information, and they just make a qualitative assessment of the product they are tasting.

Body  Term which is used to describe the sensation of weight and consistency of the wine in the mouth; with structure and character.

“Capitoso”  Wine with a high alcohol content.
Character  “Personality” of a good wine. Series of special characteristics which enable it to be distinguished from others.

“Colheita selecionada” (selected harvest) Designation provided in law which can only be applied to VQPRD and Regional Wines that have outstanding organoleptic properties and an alcohol content equal to or higher (by 1% vol.) than the established minimum limit. The year of harvest must be indicated.

Complex  Wine rich in aromas. The term is used when a wine gives us multiple sensations resulting from a good blend between intense, pleasant aromas and flavours.

“Cuba”  Cement or stainless steel vat or tank for the fermentation or storage of wines.

Decanting  Process by which the wine is poured into a special container (decanter) with the aim of separating it from possible sediment that has been deposited at the bottom of the bottle. This operation also allows the wine to “breathe”.

“Dégorgement”  French expression referring to the operation of removing sediment concentrated in the neck of the bottle of a sparkling wine.

“Denominação de Origem” (Designation of Origin) Concept applied to certain wines whose originality and individuality are connected to a specific region. The grape varieties used, the wine-making methods and the organoleptic properties are some of the elements that are checked to allow the Designation of Origin to be awarded.

Destalking  Operation which consists in separating the grapes from the stalks to stop the wine containing too much tannin.

DOP  Abbreviation in Portuguese for Protected Designation of Origin. Classification awarded to a quality wine produced in a specific region.

Dry  Wine whose residual sugar content is equal to or less than 4 grams per litre.

Elegant  Harmonious wine, balanced and delicate.

Finish  Taste that the wine leaves in the mouth after being drunk or tasted. It can be long or short depending on how long the taste remains.

Fortified  Wine with a high degree of alcohol and which, in general, contains a significant quantity of sugars owing to the fact that the fermentation was interrupted by the addition of brandy.

Fresh  This is used to refer to a wine which, through its natural acidity, gives a sensation of freshness.
Full Wine with a lot of body, with a strong structure and character. The term is used to refer to a wine that is big, rich and powerful, that fills the mouth.

Full-bodied Full.

“Generoso” Quality fortified wine.

Grape Variety Name given to a vine that produces grapes with certain characteristics. Variety of vine.

Hard Designation for a very tannic wine, not at all soft or velvety.

Lees Sediment that accumulates at the bottom of wine containers.

Maceration Contact between the must and the solid parts of the grapes (skins, stalks and pips) during fermentation, with the aim of extracting their properties. Carbonic maceration is used for red wines, with the solid parts being placed in fermentation tanks. Pellicular maceration is used for white wines and consists of leaving the skins and the pips in contact with the must, in tanks.

Malolactic fermentation Final fermentation caused by bacteria which leads to the formation of lactic acid and carbon dioxide. Through this process, the acidity of the wine is reduced, its aroma is refined and greater stability in its conservation is achieved.

Maturing Development of wines over time, during which their characteristics change, positively or negatively.

Medium-dry Wine whose residual sugar content is above the maximum for dry wines, and goes up to a maximum of 12 grams per litre.

Medium-sweet Wine whose residual sugar content is above that stipulated for medium-dry wines, and goes up to a maximum of 45 grams per litre.

Oenology The science that studies the manufacture and conservation of wine.

Organoleptic Refers to the characteristics of a wine that can be perceived through the senses, such as the colour, the aroma and the flavour.

Persistence Duration of the sensations left by the wine in the nose and mouth.

“Reserva” (Reserve) Designation given to wines which have outstanding organoleptic properties and an alcohol content that is at least 0.5% vol. higher than the obligatory minimum. The use of the term makes the indication of the year of harvest obligatory and it can only be used for “VQPRD” and Regional Wines (Vinho Regional).
Rounded  Soft, velvety wine.

Short   Wine whose taste does not persist, almost with no finish.

Single variety  Wine produced from just one grape variety.

Stalk  Woody part of the bunch which holds the grapes.

Sweet  Wine whose residual sugar content is equal to or higher than 45 grams per litre.

Tannins  Elements of great importance in the quality of a wine, responsible for some of its organoleptic properties. They belong to a group of polyphenols (colouring matter with a bitter taste that influences the structure of the wine) that are present not only in the grapes (skins, stalks and pips), but also in the wooden barrels where the wine is aged. The tannins give the wine its potential for ageing, structure, body and flavour.

Tears  Droplets running down the inside of the glass (when the liquid is swirled), characteristic of wines that are rich in alcohol, sugars and glycerine.

“Terroir”  This term is of French origin and refers to the overall quality of the soil, climate, environment, grape varieties and vineyards.

Toasty  Aroma and flavour that evoke dried fruits, coffee or toast.

“Tonel”  Oak barrel for the ageing and storage of wines.

“Vinho Regional” (Regional Wine)  Wine with a geographical indication after approval of the seal of guarantee.

Vinification  Series of operations needed to turn grapes into wine.

“Vinoso” (Vinous)  Wine that smells of fresh must, of young wine, dense.

VQPRD (QWPSR)  Quality Wine Produced in a Specific Region.
NOTE ABOUT THE HEAD SOMMELIER

Hermínio Fernandes Rebelo

Hermínio Rebelo is a wine lover. His connection to Bacchus’s precious nectar goes back over 40 years, to when he was working as sommelier at the Penina Golf Hotel. In 1973, a date with destiny meant he attended the organoleptic tasting sessions at the Sheraton Lisbon Hotel and by 1990 he had gained sufficient experience and knowledge to teach students at the Algarve Hotel and Tourism School.

Four years later, he joined the Chamber of Tasters of the Comissão Vitivinícola do Algarve, the Algarve Wine Commission, where he was also a certifier. Between 2003 and 2004, he was invited to speak at various talks about wine, taking him to various parts of Portugal, France and Spain. And in 2004, he was awarded the Portimão Hotel and Tourism School’s Career Prize for the competence and professionalism which he had put at the disposal of hospitality training.

In 2005, he was invited to give technical classes in Oenology, Organoleptic Tasting and Wine and Cellar Service as part of the Hotel Management course at the Portimão branch of the University of the Algarve. The following year, and in 2008 and 2013, he was a member of the jury of the Algarve Wine Competition, where his tremendous contribution to the event over the years was recognised.

In 2010, the Rotary Club of Portimão decided to award him its Career/Creditor Diploma and Prize for his services to hospitality, wine and training. From then on he has been paid tribute to annually through the Hermínio Rebelo Algarve Gastronomy and Wine Festival, organised by the Hotel and Tourism School in Portimão.

He received another award in 2012, when Portimão Municipal Council presented him with its Silver Medal and Diploma of Merit in recognition of his extraordinary professional competence and his dedication to the wines of the Algarve, having stood out in the life of the municipality and among its residents.

Today, Hermínio Rebelo still sits on jury panels at wine competitions in other wine-growing regions of Portugal, as well as the National Competition held annually in Santarém. And he is still recommending and tasting the wines of the Algarve, ensuring the quality of those that reach the tables of all lovers of great wine. And always with the sensitivity of someone for whom wine has been their life.
